THE WALL OF NAMES AT STEAM

The skill, ingenuity and sheer hard work of many thousands of men and women, made the Swindon Railway Works world famous. STEAM – Museum of the Great Western Railway, tells the story of these people and celebrates their achievements.

At its peak, over 12,000 people were employed in the Swindon Works that, from its beginnings in 1843 to its closure in 1986, dominated the life and development of the town.

The Wall of Names is a memorable section of the Museum, where many of the people that worked 'inside' are honoured.

You can add the name or names of anyone who was employed in the Works at Swindon at any time during its existence. The cost is just £25.00 for a plaque with a single name.

There is also a special Book of Honour to which you can add your name. It will show your trade, location of work and the dates of employment, and will form a permanent record of the many skills once practiced in Swindon's Railway Works for nearly 150 years. The cost for each name entered in the Book of Honour is just £15 and will create a unique record of Swindon's finest craftsmen.

The image used on the cover of this leaflet shows GWR workers leaving Swindon Works in the 1920's and is taken from the archive collection at STEAM.
